New Director Hired for the Tribal Employment Rights Office

Fort Hall – The Shoshone-Bannock Tribes hired a new Director for the Tribal Employment Rights Office (TERO), Hank Edmo-McArthur, effective October 30, 2023.

“I am looking forward to promoting tribal employment opportunities and expanding our training programs for tribal members,” said Edmo-McArthur. “I will strive to uphold and honor our Tribal TERO Ordinance to the best of my abilities.”

Hank has over twenty years of experience working for the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes in various capacities. He previously worked for fifteen years as the Business and Operations Manager at the Shoshone-Bannock Jr./Sr. High School. He obtained a degree in Health Education from Idaho State University with a focus in public health.

Hank’s short-term goals include making connections with construction companies and promoting our tribal work force. He also plans on meeting with current apprentices and encouraging them to continue their hard work and dedication.

“I am looking forward to what Hank is able to accomplish in his new role, said Elese Teton, Executive Director for the Tribes. “His years of experience working with the Tribes makes him a valuable asset to the organization.”

In Hank’s free time he enjoys spending time with his three wonderful kids and amazing wife. His hobbies include golfing, hunting, hiking snowboarding, mountain biking, learning new things and listening to financial podcasts.
